Chip in to help a child

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month, a time to raise awareness about child abuse and neglect and encourage support for children and families. As part of its ongoing "Connecting for Kids" partnership, PB&C will donate 10 percent of cookie sales all month to Free Arts of Arizona, which inspires and transforms children's lives through the power of artistic expression. PB&C also donates a portion of the profits from its bottled water and all proceeds from specially designed canvas bags to Free Arts.

"This truly makes a difference to our organization and the support we are able to provide kids in our community," said Rachel Oesterle, Free Arts executive director. "And it's especially sweet because you get to munch on delicious cookies at the same time. Don't you want water with that?"

The man who made our world a sweeter place

Dan Patterson, Founder & CEO

It started with just six simple choices – three kinds of cookies and three kinds of muffins. And it took up just half of the store – the other part was devoted to Hot Dog on a Stick.

Sprinkle in great taste and a commitment to excellence and Cookie Munchers Paradise was born. Thirty-three years later, Paradise Bakery & Café has 75 locations in 10 states and 2,900 employees who are more like family than co-workers. PB&C has become a leader in fast casual dining. This month founder Dan Patterson retires. Aply picking up the spatula is President David Birzon, who has been with Paradise for 20 years. Danny and David have made this Paradise for guests and colleagues alike.

We'll miss you, Chief Cookie Muncher.

Sunshine you can eat

My favorite cookie is Lemon Zester, what's yours?

What heralds picnic weather better than the warm yellow glow of the sun. Warm your tummy with the glow of our Lemon Zester cookies. Kind of like sunshine with a zesty punch. So pucker up and enjoy. You don't have to eat 'em while sitting on a blanket, you know.
